Performance Notes

Ridiculous descriptions aside, this simple piece is truly meant to be a funny diversion for your symphonic program. Interpretation of the piece is at the composer's discretion bearing in mind some of the following notes:

The piano part is deceptively simple (until the end). It would be a hilarious idea to bring in a pianist for a big number, but play this piece first.

Liberties should be taken with each section to allow the entire orchestra to be creatively humorous. At mm. 70, have the brass section stand; you know, since they're finally playing. That kind of thing.

In the final six measures there is a triangle feature. The triangle player MUST sell it! Beginning at mm 141, the conductor should direct each chord at liberty.

Finally, I say again, do whatever you can dream up to make your performance of this piece singularly YOURS!
